

Call for Applications:

Dutch language-course in May-June 2023 for Graduate Students (tuition-free)

Applications are invited for a month-long course ("the summer course") in modern Dutch, early modern Dutch/paleography, and archival research in Amsterdam/The Hague* ('the archival week'). The first two sections can be taken separately. The third section, in the Netherlands, requires participation in one or both of the first two sections. The course is free-of-charge. Funding has been provided through the Nederlandse Taalunie.

The course has three distinct sections, and students may apply to the first section (Modern Dutch for Reading Knowledge), and/or the second section (Early Modern Dutch/Paleography). Participation in the third section, the Archival week in the Netherlands, requires participation in either or both other sections. (A single letter of application will suffice for any section(s) of the course, but applicants should be sure to include the appropriate supporting materials for the particular section(s) of the course to which application is being made. Applicants are requested to clearly state which sections they are applying to, by stating it in boldface on the letter of purpose.

Participants in the Archival Week must make arrangements for their own accommodations and flight. Travel expenses within the country may be covered depending on additional funding.*

Descriptions of the courses and requirements for admission to each section

Week I & II: Modern Dutch for Reading Knowledge

This section will cover reading strategies, grammar and vocabulary of modern Dutch.

Open to all students with the equivalent of 2 semesters or more of Dutch (or 4 semesters of German or equivalent) at the college level. Students must submit evidence of competence in the language. Preference will be given to students enrolled in a PhD program, although M.A students may apply. Students who are unsure if their level of Dutch is satisfactory should contact Wijnie de Groot (wed23@columbia.edu).

Week III: 17th-century Dutch texts/paleography workshop

The workshop will cover reading strategies of 17th-century printed and handwritten texts.

Open to all students with the equivalent of 3 semesters or more of Dutch or 2 full years of German at the college level or equivalent. Students must submit evidence of competence in the language. In addition, students should submit a letter of purpose explaining their reason for application.

*Students who are unsure if their level of Dutch is satisfactory should contact Wijnie de Groot (wed23@columbia.edu). Preference will be given to students enrolled in a PhD program, although M.A students may apply.

Week IV: Archival workshop in the Netherlands

This workshop (in collaboration with the University of Amsterdam) will take place in the Netherlands (it includes visits to the Royal Library, National Archive and RKD (Netherlands Institute for Art History) in the Hague, the Amsterdam City Archive and University of Amsterdam Special Collections, and the Provincial Archive in Haarlem/Noord-Hollands Archief) and will introduce students to 16th and 17th century archives and other resources* (such as the Maritime Museum and the Print Room at the Rijksmuseum in Amsterdam). Space for this week will be limited to a maximum of ten students, and is highly competitive. The workshop will take place from June 19 to 23.

Subject to change*

Preference will be given to PhD candidates who are ready to start dissertation research. This week is not open to M.A. students.

Email Wijnie de Groot at wed23@columbia.edu for additional information.

PREREQUISITES

Applicants for the Netherlands portion of the course (week IV) must

- have completed MA thesis and first-year of graduate work at the Phd level;*
- be currently enrolled in a PhD program;*
- be at or close to the stage of planning the dissertation research and have a good idea of the kinds of sources that will be needed to conduct research;*

- submit a letter of support from advisor or principal faculty member: the letter should endorse the usefulness of the trip and the archival experience, in the expectation that it will lead to archival work for the thesis;
- submit a letter of purpose: it should explain how the training will advance ongoing or planned research for a doctoral thesis (including an indication of what stage the applicant is in their program: first-, second-year, etc.)
- have completed Week I/II and/or Week III (students who completed these in previous years are also invited to apply).

All applications, along with supporting documents, should be emailed to Wijnie de Groot at wed23@columbia.edu. They are due March 15, 2023.

Inquiries should also be directed to Wijnie de Groot.
